

A turning point

Germany was never part of the plan

- Opportunity during BSc → HP Work Placement (14 months)
- Good excuse to get away - new country
- Permanent Job Offer after BSc
 - Meant no UK job hunt
 - Master's while working at Integral
 - Planned to stay for max 2 years
 - Packed a rucksack and rode to Germany

Industry

Integral - where I really learned development

- SW Developer ~8 years
- Small company, small team ~12 people
- Built server monitoring tools used worldwide
- Hands-on with everything
- Learned fast (most of what I know re SW Dev)
 - Intense, but valuable
- Long hours ~14-hour days and most Saturdays
- Lots of pressure, if we didn't deliver the company did not earn...
